Toters officially joined the Endeavor network by being selected amongst 18 companies from 13 countries at Endeavor's International Selection Panel (ISP), which took place in Athens, Greece, from October 22 to 24 2018.

Toters is a digital and logistics company powered by its own advanced technology and fleet and provides delivery services to connect and distribute products between merchants and customers.

In the presence of panelists drawn from extensive international network of board members, mentors, supporters, and experienced Endeavor Entrepreneurs, the co-founders of Toters, Tamim Khalifa and Nael Halwani, presented their successful go-to-delivery solution, its functionalities, and plans to grow.

After a rigorous multi-step process to identify the most innovative and driven entrepreneurs, Toters was selected to join the international organization as part of the new class of high-impact Endeavor Entrepreneurs, committed to advance the entrepreneurial ecosystem both locally and globally.

"Our week at the Endeavor ISP exceeded our expectations, and has already helped us expand our network," said the co-founders of Toters in a joint statement. "We are excited to be part of the Endeavor family and continue to develop Toters with their support," they said.

Since the official launch of their application 18 months ago, co-founders of Toters have attracted tens of thousands of active users to their mobile app, created opportunities for hundreds of drivers, and collaborated with over 500 premium partners.

The entrepreneurs have set ambitious goals to optimize the company's local and regional coverage area. While managing to maintain double-digit MoM growth, they have expanded their market reach to the Mount Lebanon District, launched operations in Riyadh, and more recently set up operations in Baghdad.

"We are thrilled to welcome Toters into the Endeavor network and look forward to supporting them with scaling their business leading to more value and job creation," said Christina Chehade, Managing Director of Endeavor Lebanon, adding that Their determination and success are definitely a source of inspiration to other Lebanese entrepreneurs."
